

Saving Private Ryan

Saving Private Ryan is a realistic war movie. It was realized by Steven Spielberg in 1998. This movie shows different aspects of the Second World War. The main characters are: Tom Hanks, Edward Burns, Barry Pepper, Adam Goldberg, Giovanni Ribisi and Jeremy Davis.

The story begins during the Second World War, on the 6 June 1944 in Omaha beach (Normandy). It is the landing against the Germans. During this war, three brothers of the same family were killed. One dies in Omaha beach, one other dies in Utah beach, and the last dies in the New-Guinea. The last brother, the soldier James Francis Ryan is on enemy territory... To relieve their mother, the US unit is sent to save and bring back to the USA the Private Ryan!

This movie shows the horror of the war and the mental shock for the soldiers. It also shows the bonds in a unit.

The character of the main characters changes during the war, some lost their humanity. One of them doesn't understand why the unit goes to save the Private Ryan, one other is a "war machine", he believes was born for make the war, and one soldier is scared, he doesn't want to kill everybody, even a German prisoner, but he killed later, because the prisoner killed the Captain who had to spare the lives. The cast is excellent, the actors play well and they embody their characters. The performances are brilliant. The first scene of the movie is spectacular! Really realistic! But it is violent. Lots of soldiers were killed in Omaha beach... It shows the difficulties of the soldiers to win the beach. The soldiers are fraternal. The landscape corresponds to war, and France, because it's filmed in Ireland. The sound effect is rich. Sometime, when the soldiers win a combat, the music is glorious, they appear as heroes. In fact, the American soldiers in the movie are brave, and listen all time to orders.

Fans of war film don't miss it! The special effects are incredible, during the movie you think you're on the battlefield. It is so realistic!
